FOREWORD

It is most unfortunate that the Editor of the book, Sri Prabhubhai Bhikhabhai Patel, could not live to see it published. Undoubtedly the editing would have been far better if he could himself take care of it from beginning to end. But unfortunately it was not to be as he was untimely snatched away by the cruel hands of death.

He belonged to a peasant family of Kunabi caste and was born at Sarpor-Pardi of the district of Surat in 1906. He had one sister and five brothers, he himself being the fourth. His father was Sri Bhikhabhai and mother Srimati Benabai. His education began at the village school of Satem and thence he was sent with his nephew Sri Govindaji Bhulabhai Patel, now a Homeopathic Physician at Navasari, to the Central Boarding School of Supa. It was a village middle school.

After his reading up to Matriculation came the call of Mahatma Gandhi for triple boycott of schools and colleges, Government Law Courts and foreign cloths. This was in 1919. Having given up school he joined a National School at Surat and from that time till his death he used to put on khaddar.

After two years in 1921 he went to the Gujarat Vidyapith, the National University founded by Mahatma Gandhi, and plunged deep in Congress ideology. There he came under the influence of such leaders and thinkers as Principal A. T. Gidwani, Acharya J. B. Kripalani, Kaka Kalelkar and Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, and Prof. Dharmananda Kausambi. The last-named teacher impressed upon him the glory of the ancient lore of India.

Prabhubhai then come to Visva-bharati, Santiniketan with some other students from that part of the country. Indeed, it was owing to his personal influence that at that time a good number of Gujarati students came to Santiniketan and joined the different departments of Visva-bharati. In due time Prbhubhai was admitted to the Vidya-bhavana, the Research Department of the institution of which I was then the Principal. I had there the good fortune of teaching students coming not only from the different parts of the country, but also from such distant lands as Japan and Germany.

As a student Prabhubhai endeared himself to all his teachers and inmates of the Asrama including our revered Gurudeva, Rabindranath. He was very intelligent and promising. In the Vidya-bhavana he was one of those students who studied under my personal guidance and I felt fortunate and proud to have him as a pupil. His subject of study here was Buddhism with special reference to its Tibetan and Chinese sources.

Here in Visva-bharati he lived for more than seven years and made it almost his permanent home. Once again come the call from Mahatma Gandhi, and Prabhubhai left his studies for the time being in order to serve his motherland and courted arrest and was imprisoned. This proved too much for him, for after two years of jail life he came out a total wreck in health. His robust constitution broke down and he developed hemiplagia from a little strain in his spine. Best of India's doctors, physicians, surgeons and specialists in nature-cure could do no better than giving some temporary relief. He removed to the house of his nephew Dr. G. B. Patel, already referred to, at Navasari. He was now a complete invalid, crippled and confined to his wheel-chair and bed, but his mind was clear till the end which came on the 30th December, 1942. He was taken to his village home where he breathed his last after an agony of red sores and now lies buried in his family land. He remained unmarried after the divorce from his wife with whom he was married at a very tender age according to the social custom prevailing there at the time.

The papers left behind by Prabhubhai were sent to Santiniketan by Dr. G. B. Patel in the first week of February, 1944, when I went there again for a few months, and I sorted them in two bundles, one containing those connected with the Citta-viśuddhiprakaraṇa and his Tibetan studies and the other connected with mainly Chinese studies and miscellaneous papers. From the papers that are with me and other materials at my disposal it is known that Prabhubhai made serious studies in the Bodhicitta literature both in Chinese and Tibetan. His paper Bodhicitta-vivaraṇa in the Indian Historical Quarterly (Vol. VIII 1932, pp. 700) will show it clearly.

He contemplated preparation of a critical edition of the Bodhicittavivaraṇa, a well-known work on the subject, giving its Tibetan version with the restorted Sanskrit text. For this purpose he made a transcription of the Tibetan version and restored the Sanskrit verses from it. He collected also a number of original Sanskrit verses of it scattered in different Sanskrit works.

Besides, he transcribed the Tibetan texts of the following books :

(i) Bodhicittavivaraṇa-ṭīkā, (ii) Bhāvanākrama, (iii) Bodhicittabhāvanāvivarana, (iv) Bodhicittotpāda, and (v) Saṃvṛtibodhicitta-bhāvanopadeśa-varṇasaṃgraha.

Again, among the papers left by him there are found also the following :

(i) Bodhisambhārasūtra of Nāgārjuna tentatively restored to Sanskrit from the Chinese text.

(ii) Bodhilakṣaṇavimuktiśāstra, Chinese text with Sanskrit rendering.

(iii) A short text on Bodhicitta with Sanskrit translation.

(iv) A restored Sanskrit text from Tibetan (?) appearing to be called Bodhicittabhāvanā containing 1-65 verses.

(v) Two pages of a Tibetan transcription of Maitreyanātha's Mahāyānottaratantra.

(vi) A short Chinese text entitled Bodhicittārtha containing the original and its Sanskrit translation.

(vii) Paramārtha-bodhicitta-bhāvanākrama-varnana-samgraha of A ś v a g h o ṣ a—a complete Tibetan transcription.

(viii) There are also some fragmentary miscellaneous notes, different Bodhicitta texts as well as collections of Sanskrit verses of Ratnāvalī and other Bundhistic works that are found scattered as quotations in different books.

The papers contain also the following three papers of P r a b h u b h a i not yet published :

(i) The Doctrine of Śūnyatā (14 pages),

(ii) Why Was Buddhisim Popular (about 12 pages), and

(iii) Mysticism in Buddhism (14 pages).

In the Indian Historical Quarterly for 1932, Vol. III, pp. 316 and 689, he edited the complete text of the Catustava of N ā g ā r j u n a in a restored Sanskrit version together with its Tibetan text. Just before it T u c c i' s paper Two Hymns of the Catustava of N ā g ā r j u n a giving the original Sanskrit of only two stavas appeared in the April number of the JRAS. P r a b h u b h a i' s paper was written long before it and sent to the Editor of the Quarterly. As regards the quality of this work of P r a b h u b h a i one may be referred to my observation in the same number of the Indian Historical Quarterly (p. 317).

P r a b h u b h a i wanted to bring out a new edition of the Subhāṣitasamgraha in Nagri script, which was originally edited in Roman characters by C. B e n d a l l in Le Musion, 1903. Having this object in view P r a b h u b h a i made (15. 10. 29) a Nagri transcription of that book and the copy still lies with me.

As regards his edition of the Cittaviśuddhiprakarana it was at my suggestion that he undertook it and worked on it earnestly. I do not exactly remember when he finished it or when the Ms. was sent to the press, but it is certain from his papers that pages up to 76 were printed off and the final proofs of the remaining portion of the book, i. e. the Notes and different Indexes, viz., those of the karikas of the Sanskrit and two Tibetan texts as well as those of the Cittaviśuddhiprakarana quoted in other works, were received long before August, 1934, and forwarded to the author for his print order. He was then lying ill in his nephew's residence at Navasari and I was also away from Santiniketan. This as well as the difficulties of printing during the war years including some unforeseen circumstances hampered the timely printing of the book.

After a lapse of some years the work of printing was resumed at the initiative of Sj. Pulinbihari Sen, M.A., of the Publishing Department of Visva-Bharati. Sj. Kshitischandra Ray, M. A., Assistant Secretary. Visva-Bharati, also took much interest in it.

The Notes and a few pages of the second Tibetan text, (i. e. the verses from III to the end of the Cittaratnaviśodhana) had to be printed for the second time, these being seen through the press by Dr. P. C. Bagchi, now Director of Research Studies in Visva-Bharati. For this the authorities are thankful to him. It is to be regretted that the Indexes of the first and the second Tibetan texts could not be printed this time.

The Introduction to the book originally appeared in the Indian Historical Quarterly, 1933, pp. 705. As it was meant to be finally published as an introduction, we have made use of it as such without any change. As regards the editing of the book, there are defects of which nobody could be more painfully conscious than myself. I am, however, glad that the book is now published and thereby my self-imposed debt to a pupil (śiṣya-ṛṇa) is somehow paid off.

I have deliberately desisted from making any particular observation on the edition of the book by one of my most beloved pupils. Let the readers and scholars judge for themselves. Yet, I may perhaps permit myself to remark that it is undoubtedly a scholarly work and a real contribution to the subject and as such it will occupy an important position in Buddhistic studies.

In conclusion it may be added that Prabhubhai was a fairly well-known litrary figure in his own mother-tongue, Gujarati. He tried his hand at novels, short stories, drama and poetry. His novel Deśadrohī 'The Traitor to the Country' and a book of poems called Divaḍiā 'The Lamp' received appreciation from the Gujarati-reading public. His death cut short a life full of promise and high expectations.

INTRODUCTION

This treatise was brought to light by the late Mahāmahopādhyāya H a r a p r a s a d S a s t r i.[1] Ever since that publication, no one has taken any serious notice of it, excepting that some scholars[2] have used it for the purpose of reference. The original MS. of the work is of palm leaves in old Newari script. As it is very defective, its transcription and the printed text based on it are not free from mistakes. In the original MS. the first leaf is missing, the obverse side of the seventh leaf is totally illegible and many pādas, phrases or words are too much defaced to be deciphered with any certainty.

The thought that these handicaps could be overcome to a great extent with the help of the Tibetan versions of the work prompted me to undertake the task of preparing a critical edition of it. There are two Tibetan translations of this work, the first[3] of which has been referred to by B e n d a l l,[4] and the second,[5] which has a different title and is attributed to a different author,[6] has been traced by me in the course of editing the first work. A further comparison of the present work with some other texts on the same or similar subjects, supplied me with some more useful materials to work upon. A number of verses or their parts which are exactly the same as or similar to those[7] in this treatise, have been of great help in the correction of wrong readings and the selection of the right ones from among a number of them.

There is no title in the Sanskrit MS. of this work.[8] In SS where some of the verses of this treatise are cited, the title is given as Cittaviśuddhiprakaraṇa.[9] The first Tibetan translation (CAV), both in transliteration and translation, calls it Cittāvaraṇaviśodhananāmaprakaraṇa. The second translation names it Cittaratnaviśodhana. In the printed text I have adopted the title supplied by SS. because the title of the work should naturally be Cittavisuddhiprakaraṇa, as the theme of the treatise as indicated by its last verse[10] is Cittaviśuddhi and as will be shown later on, it is a prakaraṇa, a class of writings to which it can be allotted.

The work is generally attributed to Āryadeva. CV.[1] states in its colophon kṛtir iyam Āryadevapādānām iti. CV.[2] supports it with a similar statement, viz. Cittaviśuddhiprakaraṇe Āryadevapādair apy uktam. CAV, too, in its beginning as well as its end, supports this view.[11]

There is also some external evidence to show that this treatise was written by Āryadeva and none else. Cittaviśuddhi, according to Vajrayāna is one of the kramas 'stages' which are essential to the path that leads to the realization of sambodhi[12] 'complete enlightenment'. Pañcakrama,[13] a treatise dealing with these stages, devotes a whole chapter to it.[14] The Ṭippaṇī on this chapter states that Ācārya Ś ā k y a m i t r a, the redactor and the commentator of the text, has made some additions to it. These additions again are said to be the summary of a work, viz. Anuttarasaṃdhi of Ā r y a d e v a, which also is reported to have been known as Cittaviśuddhikrama.[15] In my opinion this Ā r y a d e v a and his Cittaviśuddhikrama alias Anuttarasaṃdhi have some relation to the author and the work under discussion. The existence of a work called Cittaratnaviśodhanakrama[16] does support the view that the Cittaviśuddhiprakaraṇa alias Cittaratnaviśodhana should have been related to some krama.

Moreover, there are two other treatises, Svādhiṣṭhānakrama-prabheda[17] and Adhisambodhikramopadeśa (bdag. byin. gyis. brlab. pa'i. rim. pa. rnam. par. dbye. ba and mṅon. par. byaṅ. chub. pa'i. rim. pa'i. man. ṅag respectively),[18] attributed to Ā r y a d e v a, which in spite of the similarity of their titles to those of some chapters in PK, are not identical with them. They, too, like the work under discussion, deal with the same subject matter as in PK. Further, the redactor of the Narthang edition of Tib. T. includes these three works in a volume which is mainly comprised of treatises dealing with PK. This, I think, is a sufficient evidence to put them down as belonging to the PK. literature. All of these treatises, though available as independent works, are, in fact, not so. Each of them taken as a separate unit, does not do full justice to all the aspects of Vajrayāna. They are really, as indicated by one (CVP) of them, more like some chapters than complete independent works. They complement each other when taken as a whole. This, I think, is sufficiently convincing an evidence in support of the existence of a hypothetical work written by Ā r y a d e v a similar to PK.

Again at the end of the chapter III : Anuttarasaṃdhir iti aparanāma Cittaviśuddhikrama. See PK., p. xii, footnote 6. A verse from the latter is cited in BD., p. 28 as th at of the former.

As regards the identification of this Ā r y a d e v a, it can unhesitatingly be said that he is not the same as one who is well-known as the author of Catuḥśataka, Śataśāstra, Akṣaraśataka etc.,[19] though H a r a p r a s a d S a s t r i,[20] P o u s s i n,[21] B e n d a l l,[22] K i m u r a,[23] N a r i m a n,[24] and others[25] seem to have once believed him to be so, while B h a t t a c a r y a[26], V a i d y a[27], and later on P o u s s i n[28] also doubted this identification.

When the tenets of Vajrayāna were current in Bengal there was a writer of this name. He is supposed to have been known under two or three other names[29]. Many Sanskrit as well as Bengali treatises on the then Vajrayāna are attributed to him[30] In my opinion this Ā r y a d e v a is identical with the author of Cittaprakaraṇa[31], Svādhiṣṭhānaprabheda[32] and Anuttarasaṃdhi referred to above and is the one referred to in some other works.[33] of the same school.

The second translation (CRV) as stated above[34], attributes the work to R ā j ā I n d r a b h ū t i p ā d a. He was both a patron and a writer of the Vajrayāna school, and was known as Mahārājādhirāja[35], Mahācārya, Oḍḍiyanasiddha, Avadhūta etc.[36]

Besides, in his two Sanskrit works, available at present, he is reported to have written a good many other treatises[37], big and small. Unfortunately they are known only through their Tibetan versions. He is supposed to have lived about the fourth quarter of the seventh century A. D.[38]

As regards the date of this Ā r y a d e v a, there is very little evidence. Some of the verses of the work occur in other works of settled dates ; but that too, does not throw any light on the point, as these verses occur in the texts themselves without any indication that they are quoted from some other works. We have already seen that Ā r y a d e v a was the predecessor of Ś ā k y a m i t r a who summarised the Anuttarasaṃdhi of the former.[39] Now this Ś ā k y a m i t r a was a disciple of Ś ā k y a-p r a b h a,[40] who was a contemporary of G o p ā l a of the Pāla dynasty of Bengal.[41] This fact gives us some data to presume that this Ā r y a d e v a was somewhat earlier than the beginning of the eighth century A. C.

Thus Ā r y a d e v a lived during a period in which N ā g ā r j u n a[42] the disciple of R ā h u l a b h a d r a[43] (S a r a h a), I n d r a b h ū t i p ā d a, the king of Orissa[44], L a k ṣ m i ṃ k a r ā, the learned sister of the latter,[45] and other siddhas upheld the banner of Vajrayāna. A comparison of their works shows that the ideal and the path to realise it, which they advocated, were identical in essence. The facts (1) that the chapters bearing similar titles[46] and cotaining similar treatment of the subject are attributed to both N ā g ā r j u n a and Ā r y a d e v a, (2) that the Tibetan translators committed a mistake in attributing one and the same work to both Ā r y a d e v a and I n d r ab h ū t i, and (3) that the occurence of similar and identical verses[47] in different works of all of them, can be accounted for by their being contemporaries and having similar mission.

From the Tibetan translations it is known that the Indian translator of CAV was J ñ ā n ā k a r a. Nothing is known about his date, life and career, except that he had translated also some other works from Sanskrit into Tibetan.[48] The author of one of them, viz. Gaṇacakravidhi is Ācārya D o m b i h e r u k a who is supposed to have lived in the latter part of the eighth century A.C.[49] We can deduce from it that the first translation was accomplished after that period.

The Tibetan interpreter of this translation was J a y a ś ī l a (Tshul. khrims. rgyal. ba.). If he is the same person as the one who was deputed to India by the Tibetan king Chaṅ. Chub in search of a great Ācārya for Tibet,[50] it may be said that the translation was made in the eleventh century A. C. For the person whom J a y ś ī l a took with him to Tibet was Mahāprabhu D ī p a ṃ k a r a Ś r ī j ñ ā n a[51] (980—1053),[52] who was a contemporary of king N a y a p ā l a of Magadha.[53]

The second translation was made by Upādhyāya D ī p a ṃ k a r a Ś r ī j ñ ā n a. It is decidedly a later one than the former, as is indicated at the end of the colophon in CRV.[54] It has many discrepancies as regards its fidelity to both the spirit and the words of the Sanskrit text. As for the identification of its translator, D ī p a ṃ k e r a Ś r ī j ñ ā n a, it is not at all certain whether he is identical with the great D ī p a ṃ k a r a alais A t ī ś a or not. If they are one, it will be difficult to account for the difference of the titles of the two translations, and the names of the authors of the original work. It has already been shown that the interpreter of CAV, and this A t ī ś a b h ū t i, and (3) that the occurence of similar and identical verses[47] in different works of all of them, can be accounted for by their being contemporaries and having similar mission.

From the Tibetan translations it is known that the Indian translator of CAV was J ñ ā n ā k a r a. Nothing is known about his date, life and career, except that he had translated also some other works from Sanskrit into Tibetan.[48] The author of one of them, viz. Gaṇacakravidhi is Ācārya D o m b i h e r u k a who is supposed to have lived in the latter part of the eighth century A.C.[49] We can deduce from it that the first translation was accomplished after that period.

The Tibetan interpreter of this translation was J a y a ś ī l a (Tshul. khrims. rgyal. ba.). If he is the same person as the one who was deputed to India by the Tibetan king Chaṅ. Chub in search of a great Ācārya for Tibet,[50] it may be said that the translation was made in the eleventh century A. C. For the person whom J a y ś ī l a took with him to Tibet was Mahāprabhu D ī p a ṃ k a r a Ś r ī j ñ ā n a[51] (980—1053),[52] who was a contemporary of king N a y a p ā l a of Magadha.[53]

The second translation was made by Upādhyāya D ī p a ṃ-k a r a S r ī j ñ ā n a. It is decidedly a later one than the former, as is indicated at the end of the colophon in CRV.[54] It has many discrepancies as regards its fidelity to both the spirit and the words of the Sanskrit text. As for the identification of its translator, D ī p a ṃ k e r a S r ī j ñ ā n a, it is not at all certain whether he is identical with the great D ī p a ṃ k a r a alais A t ī ś a or not. If they are one, it will be difficult to account for the difference of the titles of the two translations, and the names of the authors of the original work. It has already been shown that the interpreter of CAV, and this A t ī ṣ a were contemporaries as well as acquainted with each other. Now, if Upādhyāya D ī p a ṃ k a r a and Atiśa D ī p a ṃ k a r a were one and the same person, it becomes hardly believable that a work which is not of much importance, was translated twice during the same period

Hence one is naturally led to think that there might have been two persons living at different times but having the same name D ī p a ṃ k a r a. H a r a p r a s a d S a s t r i also in one of his writings[55] resorts to such a conjecture. Moreover, the different epithets[56] attached to the name D ī p a ṃ k a r a and the fact that works of various natures are attributed to him, would also support the existence of more than one person of that name.

The name of the Tibetan interpreter of the second translation is not clear. The colophon in CRV and the index volume[57] of the Tanjur give his name as khu. ston. dṅos. grub. It may literally mean Rasaśāstrasiddha ; but that is not quite convincing. The first syllable khu might also be the name of a place. According to C o r d i e r[58] the Tibetan words mean 'le maitre de khu' (the master of Khu) ; but he also suggests the following correction that they should be changed into 'grus. gyaṅ. druṅ meaning S a n ā t a n a v ī r y a. However, if the syllable khu is changed into bu, the meaning becomes clearer, because we do find such a name as Bu. Ston[59] among the Tibetan literateurs. One does not know the exact date of this interpreter, viz. Bu. Ston or Khu. Ston or whatever his name may have been ; but one thing is certain that he must have existed between the eleventh and the fourteenth century A. C. when the present edition of the Tibetan T. in which this translation (CAV) is available was accomplished [60]

Mahāyāna Buddhism in its later stage was split up into two sections, Pāramitānaya and Mantranaya.[61] The latter was subsequently divided into many branches[62] and had new elements introduced into it by several reputed Ācāryas.[63] One cannot say with any certainty to which of these many schools our work belonged. Of course the word Mahāyāna is frequently met with in the text, but that, too, is to be taken to imply some later school wherein the ideas expressed in this text were advocated. The fact that the person, known as an ideal one in our text is called a yogin and it suggests that the writer of the text might have been under the influence of the Yogatantrayāna school of the Vajrayānists.

Evidently the writers of the Vajrayāna had for their philosophical grounds the Mādhyamika[64] and the Yogācāra[65] schools. According to the latter citta is all in all.[66] Ordinary laymen and misguided bhikṣus of the Vajrayāna period misunderstood this citta. They identified it with the ordinary mind of our daily experience, deified it as a mythological personality, and tried to please it[67] by directing their conduct of life accordingly. In fact, this mind was the Bodhicitta which in its deified form identified itself with the Cittavaira[68] and Bodhivajra.[69] It was this citta which was to be worshipped and was to be taken as the only way for the fulfilment of one's purpose[70] there being no other source of real happiness.[71] But in course of time degeneration strengthened its hold and the mind was always understood in an epicurean way.

We have seen that the mind is treated by the Mahāyānists as the pivot of all metaphysical speculations and ethical conduct of life. A purified mind brings salvation, while a deluded mind leads one to the abysmal depth of damnation. The maxim, mana eva manuṣyānām kāranam bandhamokṣayoḥ, is really true both morally and philosophically.

This is the reason why all the teachers have emphasised the purity of mind. On account of this unavoidable necessity of cittaviśuddhi our writer has taken up the work of explaining its significance, process and result. His treatment of the thesis, though it deviated from the traditional way of uncompromising renunciaton and austerity, is in accordance with the social and religious conditions of that time.

Being free from all attachment this mind shines out in its true colour. It is pure from the beginning (ādiśuddham), free from all impurities (anāvilam) and enlightened by nature (prakrti-prabhāsvaram).

The following verses will be interesting in this connection :

This citta as Bodhicitta is defined as follows :—

sarvabhāvavigataṃ skandhadhātvāyatanagrāhyagrāhakavarjitaṃ dharmanairātmyasamatayā svacittam ādyanutpannaṃ śūnyatābhāvam.[72]

alakṣaṇam anutpādam asaṃskṛtam avāṅmayam / ākāśaṃ bodhicittaṃ ca bodhir advayalakṣaṇā.[73]

Thus Bodhicitta in its metaphysical aspect comes nearer to the citta 'mind' or 'conciousness' of the Yogācāra idealism. The only difference lies in our approach of awareness to them. The Yogācāra citta is conceived purely in a speculative and dialectical way by the intellectual. While the Bodhicitta is an ideal mental disposition which could be achieved, step by step, through human efforts, directed by the codes of Mahāyāna ethics and inspired by the best of the motives, viz, of maitrī 'love' and karunā 'compassion'. The Yogācāra mind is apprehended through a most subtle synthesis of one's awareness of the supreme and the dynamic force of the cosmos changing at every fraction of a moment, yet preserving its inherent continuity. It is difficult to conceive its existence beyond the symbolic world of words and ideas. On the contrary Bodhicitta, through a supernatural concept, is not altogether beyond the sphere of one's awareness. It is an ideal state of realization of a saintly personality, who as an accomplished Bodhisattva, through his pranidhānas 'resolves' undertakes the arduous task of unburdening the universe of the miseries of the samsāra.

Everybody, according to Mahāyāna Buddhism, is eligible for this state of perfect bliss. The Bodhisattvahood, it is believed, lies dormant under the pressure of vāsanā and karma, in all human beings, and a right sort of an endeavour (sādhanā) to be free from these vāsanās and karmans, awakens it from its slumber. Many writers of Vajrayāna openly declared that this Bodhisattvahood or Buddhatva can be realized within a single life-time.[74]

A picture of the Vajrayānist who could reach this ideal state of perfection, can be noticed in the following two verses. They are :

nirvikāro nirāsaṅgo niṣkāṅkṣo gatakalmaṣaḥ / ādyantakalpanāmukto vyomavad bhāvayed budhaḥ //[75] samāropavinirmuktaḥ samādhau susamāhitaḥ / sarvadā paramānandī saṃbodhiṃ bhāvayed budhaḥ //[76]

With a view to keeping himself in harmony with the mystical and esoteric aspect of his action, he is to take only to those mantras, sādhanas and dhāranis, which bring him all the more nearer to his ideals. Nothing is right or wrong for him at that stage of progress, yet he always feels inclined to perform the right action. The verse which correctly expresses that inclination, runs thus :

śubhāśubhaṃ yady api niḥsvabhāvakaṃ tathāpi kuryāt śubham eva nāśubham / jalendubimbopamalokasaṃvṛtau sukhaṃ priyaṃ duḥkham ajasram apriyam//[77]

Here it will be interesting to cite some of the Pranidhāna verses which record the declaration of his motives for reaching this stage of Bliss. Two[78] of them are as follows :

utpādayāmi varabodhicittaṃ nimantrayāmy ahaṃ sarvasattvān/iṣṭāṃ cariṣye varabodhicārikāṃ

These siddhas, who reach this stage of perfection, are on the last step of the staircase which leads to nirvāna. They, it is said, halt there for aeons and aeons in the expectation of a day when the whole of the universe will be able to be free from the chain of pratītyasamutpāda. This is an advancement from the position of Arhatship which is the summum bonum both during the life-time of the Buddha and the days after it.

Here one may naturally be inquisitive to know how could the original sayings of the Buddha be reconciled with such new interpretations of the dharma. It is evident from some of the original dialogues of the Buddha himself that, he preached the Law differently to different people. The social, the moral and the intellectual status of a disciple was considered to be a factor to be reckoned with in deciding the nature of instructions to be imparted. The whole mass of preaching was never meant to be an end in itself. To make all the human beings free from their miserable plight of the samsāra, was the main purpose of the Buddha and all his disciples after him. This gave rise to all those various interpretations of his teachings which went on getting changed in different circumstances. Thus the ideal of the Māhāyanist Bodhisattvahood was given a prominence which superseded the position and honour which the ideal of Arhatship once enjoyed. Some of the verses cited below will speak for themselves in this connection. They are :

A proper combination of prajñā (wisdom) and upāya (means) was, according to Vajrayāna, a royal road to the achievement of this ideal. Prajñā is the knowledge of things as devoid of all prapañca,[88] and upāya is full of compassion by nature.[89] Both of them are equally important in the complete realization of the ideal. Through upāya, one enters into the sphere of prajñā (the highest wisdom) and it is through the latter that one finds out the upāya. Both, so to say, go hand in hand on the way to Nirvāṇa. They are inseparable like the lamp and the light.[90] It will not be out of place if we cite the following passages which throw some light on this point. They are :

83. Ibid., Jñānasāra of Āryadeva (Tib. T. Mdo, Tsa, fol. 29a. 5-31a. 3) vs. 26-27.

So prajñā[93] and upāya[94] when adequately united[95] lead to Mahāsukha[96] gradually through the four stages of ānanda, viz., ānanda, paramānanda, sahajānanda and viramānanda[97].

The doctrine of the upāya and its logical outcome are very interesting. The origin of the tendency of indulgence in non-austere activities for a higher purpose which could be traced to some of the very old sūtras of the Mahāyānists, is due to this doctrine. As the instruction that was to be imparted, was to be like a prescription of a master physician who changes it according to the temperament and the requirement of the patient, so even the rigid rules of penance and the profound teaching of śūnyatā had to be modified in the light of circumstances.[98] Moreover the idea that the motive is the only criterion by which merits or demerits of an action should be judged, is visible in many Mahāyāna sūtras. The sins that a person commits with a noble end in view, does not contaminate his character. Upāliparipṛcchā[99] states that there cannot be any danger in a sin if it is committed with an altruistic motive. The Ratnameghasūtra[100] is reported to be much more liberal as it allows even the slaying of a person who may be on the point of committing some of the ānantarya sins.[101] Upāyakauśalyasūtra[102] cites an example of a mānavaka, Jyotis by name, reported to have been ready even to break his vow of brahmacarya which he faultlessly observed for a number of years. Even trickery and falsehood were permitted if that could serve the purpose of a greater good of a greater number.[103] Thus nothing should be left undone to realise the purpose which is above 'means'.[104] This liberalism could be justified on the ground that it is not the action of killing which spreads the contamination of the evil but the existence of the state of māraka 'murderer' in the citta which even without the action itself is sinful.[105] This spirit of liberalism of the Mahāyānists is depicted in Upāyakauśalyasūtra[106] and in the Outlines of Mahāyāna Buddhism by Suzuki.[107]

This, in short, is the brighter side of the Vajrayāna tenets. The spirit of mysticism runs through both the contemplative and the active sides of the system. All ceremonies and formulas inculcated against a background of a higher type of philosophical thoughts, were written in a language which was symbolic.[108] The words which, in an ordinary sense, would have meant one thing, were, in fact, meant to convey something else. The Ācāryas of the system were required not to unfold the secrets of their knowledge to anybody and everybody. Any man before he entered their fold, was to be put to a severe test of examination. This tradition could not be preserved intact, both in its spirit and form, with the decline of Buddhism. Hence began the miscarriage and misunderstanding of the symbolic secrets of the Vajrayāna. These ceremonies and formulas being taken at their face value, became the source of all evils that crept into the system. The ordinary people took life quite frivolously as if they lived in the world of the Hedonists and Epicureans. The system which one day was based on the most psychological and logical process of thinking and willing, thus became in time a cause of unspeakable degeneration of the whole social order of that time.

The treatise begins with an invocation to Lord Padmanarteśvara. From the very beginning it is noticed that the key-note of all the arguments employed by the writer is that, one with a pure mind (aduṣṭacitta), good intention (śubhāśaya) and proper means (upāyas), has no burden either of sin (pāpa) or of bondage (bandhana). In order to support the above view he in the text itself has adopted the first verse of Dhammapada[109] describing the influence of the mind owing to the purity and impurity of which, we have good and evil consequences. The deciding factor, with regard to the determination of pāpa and punya, is one's disposition of mind (āśaya).[110] Therefore there is no sin for one whose mind is pure.[111]

He proceeds to say that one should not be shocked at the outward features of the means advocated in the system. As a washerman makes a dirty cloth clean with some matter which itself is dirty,[112] as a man infected with poison is sometimes cured of it by poison itself,[113] or as some water accidently gone into one's ears is taken out by the help of some additional water itself,[114] so, the writer wants to assert, that one can get rid of rāga and kāma by those rāga and kāma themselves, which become the cause of bondage only when they are resorted to by the foolish, but not by the wise in whose case they are actually the cause of emancipation.[115]

Taking his stand on the Yogācāra system, he says there is nothing but citta (mind). This citta is naturally from the very beginning pure (adiśuddha) and free from all sorts of false notions (*vikalpa*s). The different ideas, by which this mind seems to be apparently connected, are not originally its own. The mind is like a marble stone which seems to be coloured by the colours of other things, influenced by the superfluous colours of the imagination.[116]

He eulogises the greatness of Mahāyāna and deprecates the text of Hīnayāna. His attack on Hindu rites and ceremonials is very aggressive and uncompromising. He denounces the practice of renunciation, austerity, bathing in the holy rivers, etc.

Some of the Tantric rites, such as the worship of women without any discrimination as regards their beauty, kinship or caste, the use of meat and wine by a yogin, are mentioned and advocated unhesitatingly. He advises everybody to resort to mantravāda only. The view on the point, held by the author, can be summed up in the following words culled here from the very work under discussion :

> prajñopāyasamāyogāc (49[c]) cittanirmalakāraṇāt (29[d]) / > siddhāntī nirvikalpo'sau (79[a]) mantrī sarvaṃ samācaret (226[d]) //

In conclusion he eulogises the greatness of the guru, without whose favour no secret meaning of the system can be realized and consequently one cannot attain success.

115. durvijnaiḥ sevitaḥ kāmaḥ kāmo bhavati bandhanam / sa eva sèvito vijnaiḥ kāmo mokṣaprasādhakaḥ // CVP., 42.

116. yathaiva sphaṭikaḥ svacchaḥ pararāgeṇa rajyate / tathaiva cittaratnaṃ tu kalpanārāgaranjitam // CVP., 27.

Thus ends one of the most important text of the Mantrayānists probably of the Yogatantrayāna school of the Vajrayāna. The author has, with a number of examples, references and similes, presented his thesis on the cittaviśuddhi very boldly. The central conception around which he weaves the web of his arguments, is in no way remarkably different from that of his contemporaries. The peculiarity of his treatment of the subject is that he does not go out of the sphere of everyday experience to find out his examples of the concrete world.

NOTES

TEXTUAL AND EXEGETICAL

a. Tib. mth'a. ma. med (CAV) and tha. ma. med (CRV) lit. mean antarahitaṃ or anantaṃ, but nidhanaṃ is also used in that sense. See JS, p. 85 ; T. Rgyud, Mi, fol. 57*b*, 1, (mth'a. med). This pāda forms the fourth one in CRV. For further explanation of a-b, see JS, p. 75.

b For acintyaṃ (bsam. pa. med. pa) CAV literally agamyaṃ ('gro. ba med. pa).

b. For -karuṇā CRV mahāparamakaruṇā (mchog. thugs. rje. chen. po'i).

b. Padmanarteśvara (Pad. ma. gar. dbaṅ. po) : He can very well be compared with Naṭeśa of the Hindu mythology. He is also recognised as avolokiteśvara (sbyaṅ. ras. gzigs), who is considered to be an incarnation of a Bodhisattva (Mahāvyutpatti, Cal, p. 7), and again incarnates himself in every Dalai Lama of Tibet (Mythologie du Buddhism by Grunwedell, p. 221). As a synonym of Padmapāṇi he is said to have been seated on an eight petalled lotus on each petal of which a goddess is supposed to be present. He has eighteen hands in all, two of them holding his Śakti (Gods of Northern Buddhism pp. 60 ff.).

Here he is invoked as an incarnation of the lord Buddha himself.

d. Cf. JS. p. 82, line 6, and its Tib. T. Rgyud, Mi, fol. 57*a* 1.

a. For nyāyena (spyi. lugs. kyis. lit. sāmānyanyāyena) CAV sāmagryā (tshogs. kyi. ni). In d for samācaret (spyad. par. bya) CRV lit. saṅsthāpayet (bdsag. bya).

a. For badhyante ('chiṅ. 'gyur. ba) CAV mriyante ('chi. ba. 'gyur. ba).

This verse frequently occurs in many Vajrayāna works. See Guhyasiddhi, as quoted in SM, part II, p. XLIX ; PS as cited in Appendix II to SS, p. 93 ; and SS, p. 39 ; Cf. also BD, p. 98 ; PK, p. 37, line 16 ; VT, p. 101 ; JS, p. 32, v. 15 ; SS, p. 33.

a-b. Cf.

sarveṣām khalu vastūnām viśuddhis tathatā matā—Śrīdvikalparāja in BD, p. 71.

8 a. For nairātmyaṃ (bdag. med. pa) CAV nirbhāgaṃ (dbyed. med. pa).

Nairātmyaṃ 'soullessness' is of two kinds : dharmanairātmyaṃ and pudgala-. DS, p. 29, CXVI. dharmas are divided under two divisions.

b. For citta (sems) both CAV and CRV jñānam (ye. śes).

c. Both the Tib. translations are not in accordance with the Skt. text. Lit. reconstructed CAV and CRV may run : tasmād apy evam utpannam (de. lta. na. yaṅ. 'di. ltar. 'byuṅ), tena tasmāt samutpannaṃ (de. bas. 'di. kun. de. las. skyes) respectively.

d. CV[1] wrongly reads gamakaṃ muni rākulaṃ, while CAV yukter apy anukūlakaṃ (rigs. pa. daṅ. yaṅ. rab. tu. mthun).

For 'everything is cittamātra' cf. SS, pp. 19, 20 ; Bodhicittavivaraṇa, Tib. T. Rgyud, Gi, fol. 48*b* 2 ; Viṃśatikārikā, p. 3 ; AS, p. 27 ; Laṅkāvatārasūtra, ed. Suzuki, pp. 241-82 ; BCP, p. 484.

9 a. This pāda occurs in SS, p. 14, and AS, p. 14.

a-b For grāhagrahāveśa ('dsin. pa'i. gdon. gyis. zin) CV[1] grahaprabhā- (or hā)veṇa.

10 This is the famous verse of Dhammapada. It is found in all the following versions of the work : (1) Die Turfan Recensionen des Dhammapada, by R, Pischel, in Sitzungsberichte der K. P. A. der Wissenschaften, 1908, XI, p. 974 ; (2) Documents Sanscrits de la seconde collection de M.A. Stein. by Prof. Poussin, JRAS, 1912. vol. XI, p.373, XXXI, 23 ; (3) Dhammapada, Pali versions, Yamakavagga, 1, 2 ; (4) Udānavarga, Tib. versions, ed. Hermann Beckh, 1911, XXXI, 24.

a. Tib. translations give the clear meaning. They lit. read mano dharmasya pūrvaṃ gacchati (CAV chos. rnams. sṅon. du. 'gro. bar. yid., Udānavarga, chos. kyi. sṅon. du. yid. 'gro. ste).

b. For -javāh (mgyogs) CRV and 2nd recension bhavāh (byuṅ) ; while recension 3 mayāh.

c. For hi recension 3 and CV[1] ca ; for prasannena (rab. tu. raṅ. ba. yis) found in the second verse of the yamaka, (1) CAV and CV1 praduṣṭena (ñes kyis), which occurs in the first verse of the yamaka (1), Here CAV unnecessarily adds prayatnenāpi ('bad. pa. yan).

To complete the sense of the verse one may add the third line of the yamaka. It runs : tatas tvam sukham anveti

chāyeva hyanugāminī I

11 a. For vṛddhaḥ (rgas pa) CV1 ādiṣṭaḥ.

b. For gacsheti ('doṅ dses) CV1 gacchati.

c. For patanāc ca (bskul bas) CV1 āyuṣyaca.

d. There are five kinds of ānantaryas (mtshams med pa) immediate sins' ; Cf. DS, pp. 13, 48 ; Laṅkāvatārasūtra, ed. Suzuki p. 362 ; Mahāvyutpatti ed. Sakaki, p. 172 ; Mahāvastu, p. 243 ;

12 a. For su- (śin. tu) CV1 sva- ; for ādiṣṭo (bstan) CRV dṛṣṭo (mthoṅ. bas).

b. For mad (ṅa. yi) CV1 sva ; and for pīḍaya CV1 pīḍitaṃ.

c. CRV omits sa (de. ni)

d. Tib. has no equivalent for tasmin.

A similar incident is cited in Vinayapiṭaka, ed. Oldenberg Vol. I, p. 83.

13 a. This pāda in CV1 wrongly runs anyasaṅgīni cālyaṃ stu.

c. For iti CAV evaṃ (di. 'dra) ; for vinaye ('dul ba las) CAV āyame (luṅ. las).

d. For aduṣṭa (ṅan med) CAV aśubha (dge. ba).

14 a. For khanane CV1 khalane. Both the Tib. texts translate the word figuratively as nāśane (śig).

b. For yataḥ (gaṅ. phyir) CV1 mataṃ ; CAV omits it.

d. For upānantaryakāraṇāt (ne. ba'i. mtshams. med. byas. pas) CV1 ukhānantaryakāriṇāṃ ; for five upānantaryas Cf. Mahāvyutpatti, ed. Sakaki S.V. p. 172.

15 a. CRV adds yaḥ (gaṅ).

16 a. For āśaya-(bsam pa) CV1 āśraya.

b. For puṇya- (bsod nams) CV1 karma- ; for vyavasthitiḥ (rnam. par. gnas) CV1 vyavasthitiḥ,

c. CAV omits yasmāt (gaṅ phyir).

Cf. Majjhimanikāya, Vol. I, p. 371. Buddha here declares that it is the motive and the intention that decide, whether, an action is sinful or meritorious.

17 a. For yogātmā (sbyor. ba'i. bdag. ñid. kyis) Ms. of CV2 yogena, and CRV lit. bhāvātmā (bdag. ñid. bsgoms pas).

b. For -dyamaḥ Ms of CV2 -dyataḥ.

c. For yogī (rnal 'byor) CV1 yogān.

d. For ca lipyate (gos par 'gyur ro) CV1 calişyate.

18 b. For ālokya (snaṅ nas) CAV ābhujya (spyad. nas) or abhibhujya with a defect in the metre, and CRV probably ālocya (bsgoms nas).

c. kevalaṃ (CAV 'ga'. dsig CRV gcig. tu) is to be read in the sense of nirṇitaṃ or niścitaṃ. Cf. Bhanuji Diksita's commentary on Amarakośa III, 3, 3, 203 ; for muhyate (brgyal bar) CV1 and CV mucyate, and CRV bādhyate (gnod pa).

Cf. BCP, p. 514, and a citation in BD, p. 98.

19 a-b. Cf. Bodhicittavivaraṇaṃ, Tib. T. Rgyud. Gi, fol. 42 b 7 ; Tibetan-Skt. Dictionary, ed. S. C. Das, SV. p. 329.

20 c-d. CAV runs as follow :

gzugs. sogs. ño. bo. ñid. śes. nas
blo. mchog. rnams. ni. grol. bar. 'gyur.

It may be translated thus :

jñānāt rūpādibhāvasya
muktā uttamabuddhayaḥ ll

But CRV reads :

de. bdsin. śes. na. rnam. grol. te l
raṅ. bdsin. mchog. gi. blo. yi. phyir ll

Lit. one may read it in Skt :

tatvajñāne vimucyante
svabhāvottamabuddhitaḥ ll

22 a. For śodhyaṃ (sbyaṅ) CV1 śoṣyaṃ and for dīpyaṃ ('bar. bar. bya) CV1 and CAV śoṣyaṃ (sbaṅ).

b. For akṣara (yi. ge) CV1 aṅkura.

c. Cf. VT, Skt. and Tib. (Kanjur, Rgyud. kha, fol. 329*a* 2.)

The first half of this pāda, anāmāṅguṣṭha (srin. lag. mthe. boṅ) is similar in CV1, VT Skt, VT Tib, and CAV, but CRV disagrees and reads sthulānandādhi (sbom. pa. gda. lhag which if corrected to sbom. pa. mthe. lag, would nearly mean the same as above). The second half is -agra (rtse. mo) in CAV, -cakra in VT Skt, -vaktra in CV1, and yoga (sbyor. ba) in VT Tib and CRV.

23 a. For yat (gañ) CAV idaṃ ('di), for iti CRV atra ('dir), and CAV omits it.

c. This pāda in CAV is as follows :

de. tsam. dsig. tu. loṅ. spyod. pa ;

It can be translated as :

etan mātreṇa sambhogī ; and in CV1 it is kāyenaiva tu samprāptām.

24 Cf. BD, p. 119 ; Tib. T. Rgyud, Mi, fol. 221*a* 2 ; Yuktiṣaṣṭikā (Tib. T. Mdo, Tsa), 6.

a. For saṃsāram ('khor. ba) BD lokaṃ. ca. It seems both these readings were current in this verse, because one finds 'jig. rten instead of 'khor. ba in the other two Tib versions of the verse mentioned above.

b. For manyante (sems) Yuktiṣaṣṭikā Tib. abhimanyate (rlom. sems); for atattvadarśinaḥ CV[1] and BD tattvadarśinaḥ. This pāda in CRV if translated would run :

anyatra dṛṣyate na tat I (gdsan. du.. de. ñid. ma. mthoṅ. ño.).

c. For saṃsāraṃ BD. lokaṃ ca.

d. BD Tib. wrongly adds one negative and in CRV the whole line is :

cetasā tattvadarśinaḥ

(yid. kyis. de. ñid. śes. pa. na).

25 b. For pātakaḥ (CAV ltuṅ. byed, CRV phuṅ. bar. byed) CV[1] pāṭakaḥ.

26 b. For viṣeṇeva (CAV dug. gis. bdsin CRV dug ltar) CV[1] viṣenaiva, CAV and CRV omit pṛthg, but the former replaces it by gnod.pa -grāha', and hence this line in that version seems to be viṣagrāheṇavāj janāḥ

(skye. bo. dug. gis. gnod. pa. bdsin I

c. For utkhātya (CAV 'don. pa, CRV phyuṅ) CV[1] wrongly utkhālya.

d. For vicaret (spyad) CRV buddhyeta (rtogs).

27 a. CAV and CRV omit eva, but CV[1] ekaḥ in its place.

b. This line in CRV lit. runs :

pareṇaivoparajyate I

(gdsan. gyis. ñe. bar. bsgyur. ba. ltar).

d. This line in CRV lit. runs :

kalpnayā na rajyate I

(rtog. pa. yis. mi. ñe. bar. bsgyur).

Cf. Śataśāstra of Āryadeva. pub. GOS, Vol. XLIX, section III, p. 27 ; or Le cento Strofe, Rome, 1925, p. 31.

28 a. For prakṛtyā (raṅ. bdsin) CV1 prakṛte and CAV prākṛta (tha. mal).

d. For niḥsvabhāvaṃ (raṅ. bdsin med) CV1 and CAV nijarūpaṃ (gñug. ma'i. raṅ. bdsin).

29 a. CRV omits one tat.

b. For yad yad (gaṅ. daṅ. gaṅ) CRV only yad (gaṅ) ; for bālaiḥ (byis. pas) CRV laukikaiḥ ('jig. rten. pa. yis), and CV1 bāla-.

d. Tsor for -kāraṇāt (bya. ba'i. phyir) CV[1] kāriṇā.

This verse is also found in CV[2]

30 a. For sammugdha (rmoṅs. pa) CRV saṅtaptaḥ (gduṅ. ba) and CV saṅyuktaḥ.

b. For -yoginām CV2 yoginā ; and for śubha- (dge. ba) CV[1] śuddha.

c. This line in CAV lit. runs :

kāminyaḥ kāmacaryābhiḥ

('dod. can. ma. la. 'dod.spyad. pas).

d. For mokṣa- (thar. ba.) CV[1] wrongly mokṣya.

31 This verse is also found in CV[2].

a. CRV omits yathā (dper. na.). This lin ein the ms. of CV2 and CAV runs with a defect in the metre : yathātmānaṃ garuḍaṃ dhyātvā (dper. na. bdog. ñid. mkha' ldiṅ. du, bsgoms. nas—)

b. CV[1] and CV[2] in this pāda runs :

gāruḍiko viṣaṃ piban ;

CAV omits ākṛṣya (bkus. ste), but MS of CV2 reads there -kṛṣam ; and CRV omits saṃ- (kun). The word gāruḍiko of CV1 and CV2 originally seems to have been written in the margin of the MS, but the later scribes incorporated it in the text itself.

c. For nirviṣaṃ (dug. kyaṅ. med. par. byed) CV[1] hi viṣaṃ.

d. For abhibhūyate (zil. gyis. non po) MS of CV2 atibhūyate.
This verse is also found in CV2.

32 a. For -vyāsaṃ both CAV and CRV -āyasaṃ (lcags). It is evident that the Tib. translator misread the Skt. -vyāsaṃ for -āyasaṃ, or it is also possible that the original Skt. was -āyasaṃ with a defect in metre and the scribe, in order to remove it emended it as -vyāsaṃ. Again it is also possible that -āyasaṃ from the beginning was read -āyāsaṃ for the sake of the metre, but later on was changed to -vyāsaṃ as the former was meaningless.

c. For samutpādya (bskyed. pa yis) CV1 anutpādya which may be right if we read it as anutpādya, and CAV lit. utpādānantaraṃ (bskyed. ma. thag).

d. Fora panītam (bsal bar) CV2 āpanītām and CAV asambhūtaṃ (med par byuṅ). This reading in accordance with the reading of CV1 in c may be justified.

33 a. For Badhicittaṃ cf. TW, pp. 13, 52, 60, 72, 80, 83, 86, and Bodhicittavivaraṇaṃ of Nāgārjuna Tib, T. Rgyud, Gi, fols. 41*a* 6 ff.

d. -āśayā is to be taken as an instrumental form of āśā. Its Tib. equivalent bsam. pa generally means āśaya cf. Tibetan English dict. ed. S. Das, SV, p. 1316. This misleads us to support CV1 which reads āśayā. But the word bsam. pa also means āśā cf. Avadānakalpalatā, 1, 2*d* ; and AS, p. 1, line 17 ; Tib, T, Rgyud, Mi, fol, 111*a*, 3.

Dr. Bhattacharya, while quoting this verse in one of his papers published in The Annals of Bhandarkar Institute, Vol. X, part I-II, p. 10, and in his introduction to SM, Vol. II, p. XXXI, changes this word into āśayaḥ.

One should not confuse this pāda with that of the verse 53 of this work.

34 b. For -svabhāva (raṅ. bdsin) CAV lit. only bhāva (dṅos. po).

c. For bhāvena (bsam. pas) CRV lit. svabhāvena (raṅ. bdsin).
Cf. AS, p. 11, line 4-5.

35 c. For rajyate (chags. pa) CV1 rāgayet. The word rāgacittena is amplified by CRV as rāgābhiniviṣṭacittena (CRV 'dod. chags. kyis. dsen. pa'i. sems).

d. For rāgabhogena (chags. pa. spyad. nas) CV1 rajyatena ca and CRV lit. tatra rāgeṇa (de. la. chags. pas).

36 a. For kutra vai (gaṅ. la) CV1 kalayā.

b. For -śaktayaḥ (nus. pa) CRV labdhayaḥ (dmigs. pa). Cf. a similar pāda in SM, p. 330.

c. For viṣākrāntaḥ (dug. gis. zin lit. viṣadhṛta CV[1] viṣājjā(grā)to. Cf. BD, p. 98.

37 This verse is found also in CV[2].

c. For tathā- (de. bdsin) CV[2] mahā-.

d. The word uddharanti is translated figuratively in Tib (CAV 'dsin. pa. byed or CRV sel. bar. byed).

38 a. For rajako vastram (gus. mkhan. gos) CRV rajakīvastram (khrus. mkhan. mo'i. ras).

b. Tib. adds byed (karoti) and makes the sense clearer.

c-d. These two lines are omitted in CAV.

39 b. CAV omits nighṛṣṭa (phyis. pas).

c. For sevitaḥ (bstan. pa. yis) CAV lit. sevitavyaḥ (bstan. par. bya).

d. For doṣaḥ (ñes. pa. dag) CV[1] and CRV doṣāt (skyon. gyis); For -vināśanaḥ ('jom. par. byed) CAV lit. prahāṇatāḥ (Spaṅs. phyir).

40 a. CAV omits kṣiptaḥ (bcug. na).

b. For eva tu kevalam (CRV kho. nar. zad) CAV only yathā (ji. ltar).

c. CV[1] tad eva for sa eva.

Here Cf. 'Abhidharma Kośa de Vasubandhu ed. Poussin, Ch. VI, 34, p. 205, footnote 3.

42 a. For durvijñaiḥ (rnam. pa. śes. ṅan. pas) CRV sammūḍhaiḥ (rmoṅs. pas).

b. CAV omits one kāma ('dod. pas) ; bhavati ('gyur) is mistaken by CRV for bhavasya (srid. par).

43 a. For sakale loke ('jig. rten. kun. la) CV[1] sahasālokya and CRV lit. laukikasya ('jig. rten. pa. la).

44 a-b. CAV omits āviṣṭaṃ ('dres) and paṇḍitāḥ (mkhas) respectively in a and b.

d. For bhuktvā (spyad. nas) CV1 bhukta- and CAV adds after it śodhayitvā (sbyaṅ. nas).

45 c. For -pūra Tib. does not give any appropriate equivalent. CAV here reads kham which means 'mouthful' Skt. kavala but neither does it suit in the metre nor does it give the sense required here. It seems that ghṛtapūra, 'a kind of sweetmeat' which is composed of flour, milk, cocoanut, and sugar and is fried in ghee is taken by the Tib. translator of CRV simply as ghṛta-śarkarā (mar. daṅ. bu. ram) Cf : Śatapañcāśikāstotra, MSS. remains in Eastern Turkistan, p. 61 v. 24.

d. CRV is not clear here.

46 a. For yat (gaṅ. dag) CAV yasmāt ('di. ltar). This shows that the Tib. translator explains yat in the sense of yasmāt.

d. For śubhaiḥ (bzaṅ. pos) CRV budhaiḥ (mkhas. pa. rnams. kyis).

47 a. For kṛśo 'py eṣo (chuṅ. ṅu. yaṅ) CAV wrongly kṛśaḥ pakṣaḥ ('chir. phyogs. la).

It may be noted here that there are a number of cases where the confusion of the Tib. translators in reading their MSS has wrongly given rise to different words in their texts. For instance, see samāṃśaṃ (mñam. par 50*b*) misread in CRV as samāsa (mdor. na) ; naiva śvā (mi. khyi. dog. gis 62*b*) misread in CRV as nāvikaḥ (mñan. pa) ; anuśaya (lhag. bsam 87*c*) misread in CRV as anu (bag. cuṅ. zag) 'a little' and śaya from the root śī 'to sleep' (ñal) ; kāma ('dod 80*a*) in CAV as karma (las) ; prākṛtatva (tha. mal. pa 114*a*) in CRV as prakṛtitattva (de. ñid. raṅ. bdsin) ; sahasā (skad. cig. gis. 120*b*) in CRV as only saha (bcas) ; sa vindati (de. yis. śes. bya 113*d*) in CRV as sa vindhati* and hence sanedhanaṃ ('bigs. par. bcas).

Both CAV and CRV omit eṣaḥ.

b. For varti (sdoṅ. bu) CAV lit. garbha or sāra (sñiṅ). This mistake is repeated also in 87*d*. Here the word -saṃskṛta is taken by CAV in the sense of śodhita (sbaṅs) while CRV explains it as prakāśita (gsal.

dsiṅ). Similar difference of meanings or peculiar confusion in using appropriate Tibetan words are frequently found in the Tibetan texts concerned here. See saṃskāra (bcos. pa 14*a*) meaning 'repair' is misunderstood by CAV as 'brought together' ('dus. byas. pa); sā avidya 'that avidyā' (ma. rig. de. yaṅ 66*d*) is taken by CRV as sa-avidyā 'with avidyā' (ma. rig. pa. bcas) ; tīrtha ('bab. stegs 62*d*) 'a place of pilgrimage on the banks of sacred streams' is wrongly understood by CRV as tīrthya, or tīrthika 'heretic' (mu. stegs) ; graha 'hold' ('dzin 73*d*) misunderstood by CRV as graha 'a planet (gza') ; uditaḥ 'arisen' ('byuṅ. ba 73*d*) is mistaken by CRV as uditaḥ 'told' (bstan. pa) ; piṇḍa 'body' (lus 60*b* and 102*c*) misunderstood by CAV as 'ball' (goṅ. bu or ril. po).

48 a. For vaṭabījaṃ (nya. gro. da'i. sa. bon) CAV only skandha (sdoṅ. po) 'a stalk'.

In Pali literature there are five kinds of bīja 'seed', Pali Dict. (P T S) s. v. bīja. One of them is skandha. Nyagrodha is included in trees which have skandha-bījas. Hence it seems that CAV has used skandha (sdoṅ. po) to mean vaṭabīja.

b. CAV altogether omits this line. Here the word sahakāra (=sahakārin) means pratyaya (rken). See Mahāvyutpatti, ed. Sakaki; p. 168 ; MV, p. 70.

c. CAV reads patra- (lo. ma) for śākhā- (yal. ga), and omits mūla- (rtsa. ba) reading alaṃkṛtaṃ (brgyan. pa) for -upetaṃ (ldan).

d. For -vṛkṣavidhāyakaṃ CRV -vṛkṣavivardhanaṃ (śiṅ. du 'phel. bar. byed), and CAV -vṛkṣo hi jāyate (śiṅ. byuṅ. bar. 'gyur).

49 b. For -miti smṛtaṃ CAV hi jāyate ('byuṅ. bar. 'gyur) and CRV -miva sphuṭaṃ (ltar. gsal. bar. byed).

c. For samāyogāt (yaṅ. dag. sbyor) CAV vidhānena (cho. ga. yis).

Prajñā is threefold :

(1) śrutimayī, (2) cintāmayī, (3) bhāvanāmayī ;

Upāyas too are three : (1) sarvasattvāvabodhakaḥ, (2) sattvārthābhāvakaḥ, (3) kṣiprasukhābhisaṃbodhi. DS. p. 28, no. CX—CXI.

d. Both the Tib. texts add paṇḍitaḥ (mkhas. pa) but CRV omits viduḥ (śes. pa).

50 b. For samāṃśaṃ (mñam. par lit. samaṃ) CV[1] samaṃsaṃ and CRV samāsena (mdor. na). In the end of this line CAV adds a negative (ma).

51 a. For rasa- (dṅol. chus) CRV suvarṇalepa (gser. 'gyur. rtsi) which means a chemical preparation rubbed with which metals are converted into gold ; for ghṛṣṭaṃ (byug. pa) CV[1] and CAV spṛṣṭaṃ (reg. pa).

b. For bhavet ('gyur) CV1 vrajet.

c. For jñānaśuddhyā (ye. śes. ni. sbyaṅs. pas) CV[1] jñānavṛddhāḥ and CV2 jñānavidaḥ.

d. For samyak (yaṅ. dag. pa) CV[1] kleṣaḥ.

52 b. CAV in this line runs :

skad. cig. skad. cig. 'chiṅ. bar. byed which suggests the following line in its Skt.

bandhanaṃ hi kṣaṇe kṣaṇe

CRV amplifies this line by āsevate (bsten. śiṅ).

c. For -cittas (sems. pa) CV[1] -tuntena (or stu. teṣām).

Hinayāna is freequently attacked in this way by many Mahāyāna treatises ; viz. those by Maitreyanātha, Aśvaghoṣa, Nāgārjuna, Āryadeva, Sthiramati and others. See The Origin of Mahayana Buddhism, by Kimura, pp. 159ff.

53 b. For -dharma- (chos) CAV -varma- (go. tsha). This line according to CRV would be read nirmitaḥ karuṇāvatā (thug. rje. chen. po. ldan. pa. sprul).

Here in CRV lit. we have mahākaruṇā for karuṇā. Such amplification is frequently met with in CRV. See its title, 3*b*, etc.

c. Prajñātantudhanu means a dhanus 'bow' of which prajñā 'wisdom' is regarded lit. as a tantu 'string'. One who puts a bāṇa 'arrow' on such bow-string is prajñātantudhanurbāṇaḥ. This reading is suggested by CAV and CRV reading śes. rab. rgyud. bcas and rgyud. ltar respectively. CV[1] has, however, kṛpānayadhanurbāṇaḥ.

d. CRV bandhana (gdon. pa) for uddharaṇa. This line repeatedly occurs in the present and other works on this subject.

54 c. For jitvā (rgyal. byas. mas) CRV tīrtvā (bsgral. bar) ; for dustara- CAV lit. durjayaḥ (brgyal. dka') and CRV only duḥ (dka') implying durjaya or dustara, the word -jaya or -tara being omitted possibly on metrical grounds.

55 a. The word paśu is differently translated in both the Tib. translations. CAV reads byol. soṅ which is explained in Tib. as lam. byol. bar. 'gro. bas. byol. soṅ, lit. one gone out of the way, hence all animals other than man, particularly the quadrupeds while CRV reads dud. 'gro, lit. 'one that walks bending', hence a quadruped opposite to man who walks upright. See Tib. Dict. by S. C. Das, sv.

d. CAV is not clear to me. CRV also omits viralā, but I have inserted it in order to make the metre complete.

56 a. CRV reads ādi (la. sogs) after duḥkha and not before it. The same case is noticed in 57*a-c.*

b. CRV omits lampaṭaḥ (dsugs) but adds mātra (tsam).

c. Both Tib. texts omit te.

57 a. Both the Tib. ādi (la. sogs) for api.

d. CAV lit. if put in prose sāmpratikāni cintayitvā kiṃ (da. ltar. gyi. la. bsam. ci. dgos) ; and CRV lit. duḥkhaṃ te sahante (sdug. bsṅal. de. yis. bzod. par. bya).

58 This verse occurs also in Advayasiddhi (AS) of Lakṣmiṃkarā, sister and pupil of the great Vajrayanist king Indrabhūti. SM, Vol. II, p. LV, footnote 3 ; Tib. T. Rgyud, Mi, fol. 63*b*. 7.

a. For kaṣṭa (CRV sdug. bsṅal. rnams or AS gzir). CAV tapaḥ (dka'. thub) and CV1 aniṣṭaṃ. The latter is evidently a misreading by HPS. Such misreadings recur in other places of the text.

The word -kalpanā which here means 'practice' in kaṣṭakalpanā 'practice of severe austerities' is not appropriately translated in Tib. Though the Skt. equivalent of the Tib. word (CRV rtog. pa or CAV brtag. pa) is rightly kalpanā, so far as Tibetan is concerned it does not give the sense of 'practice', but of 'imagination', while in fact we require the first meaning.

Tib. of AS, loc. cit. translates this line figuratively. The Tib. when put in prose : kutapasyayā kaṣṭaṃ na kuryāt (dka'. thub. ṅon. pas. gzir. mi. bya).

b. For upavāsena (bsñaṅ. ba. yaṅ) CV1 upavāsaṃ and AS Skt upavāso.

c. For caivātra ('dig. ni) AS Tib. kartavyaṃ (bya. ste).

d. For grāmadharma see Vācaspatya, p. 2273 : grāmyasya prākṛtasya hālikāder dharmaḥ ; also see Amarakośa II. 8, 57 : vyavāyo grāmya-dharmo maithunaṃ nidhuvanaṃ ratam.

The word is used also in the sense of 'the duty of villagers' in Pañcatantra (M. M. Williams Skt. Eng. Dic. sv). This word is wrongly translated in the Tib. version of Amarakośa, ed. S. Vidyābhuṣaṇa, p. 189 as gamanadharma (bgrod. chos). AS. Tib. reads here nācāraḥ kumater ayaṃ (blo. gros. chuṅ. ṅu. 'di. spyod. mi. bya).

The entire verse in Tib. version of AS if translated into Skt may run :

na kaṣṭaṃ tapasā kuryāt I nopavāsena ca kriyāṃ I snānaṃ śaucaṃ na kartavyaṃ I nācāraḥ kumater ayam II

Cf. JS. p. 88, v. 9-10.

59 a. For -asthi (rus. pa) CRV -śiro 'sthi (lgad. rus. pa).

b. For vikārajāḥ CRV simply sambhavāḥ ('byuṅ. ba), while CAV reads as in the X, hetujāḥ (rgyu. las. skyes). It seems, however, that one may read here 'gyur for rgyu, suggesting the Skt. equivalent vikārajāḥ as in Skt. text.

60 a. For itthaṃ ('di. ltar) CRV ayaṃ ('di. dag).

b. The word piṇḍa is translated into Tib. differently ; CAV has for it "a ball" (ril. po) while CRV reads as "a body" (lus. pa). The latter sense agrees with the context.

For yo (gaṅ) CV1 hya.

c. For san CAV sa ('di. ñid).

61 a. The word in CRV for ghaṭa is not legible, while CAV lit. reads bhāṇḍa (phur. ma) meaning piṇḍa 'body'.

62 a. prataranapi (sgrol) is amplified in CAV as prataran sarpan api (rkyal. dsiṅ. 'phye).

b. For naiva śvā (mi. khyi. dag. gis) CRV nāvikaḥ (mñan. pa). According to CRV a-b would run :

prataranapi gaṃgāṃ na nāvikaḥ śuddhiṃ arhati I

c. For tadvad (di. bdsin) CV1 and CRV tasmāt (de. phyir). For dharma- (chos) CRV śubha- (dge. ba) and for -dhiyāṃ (blos) CAV -icchatāṃ ('dod).

d. For tīrtha ('bab. stegs) CRV wrongly tīrthika (mu. stegs).

Cf. the following verse quoted from Mahābhārata in the Viṣṇusahasranāma-stotrabhāṣya attributed to Śaṅkācārya ; Bibliotheca Sanskrita, Mysore, p. 21 :

ātmānadī saṃyamatoyapūrṇā satyahradā śīlataṭā dayormiḥ I tatrāvagāhaṃ kuru pāṇḍuputra na vāriṇā śudhyati cāntarātmā II

63 a. For dharma (chos) CAV śuddhiḥ (dag).

c. For jalasthānāṃ CAV simply sthitānāṃ (gnas. pa), CRV jalapraviṣṭhānāṃ (chu. la. 'jug. pa), and CV1 only praviṣṭānāṃ.

d. kā kathā is translated in CAV as kathayā kiṃ proyojanaṃ (smos. ci. dgos) and in CRV as kīdṛśaḥ (ji. lta. bu).

64 a. For kṣaya (zad. pa.), X of CRV udbhavaḥ ('byuṅ. ba) which cannot be accepted ; one may, however, read here 'bud. pa meaning kṣaya.

c. For vṛddhi ('phel. bar) CRV -yoga (ldan) and CV1 buddhi.

d. For tīrthasevināṃ ('bab. stegs. bsten. pa. la) CRV wrongly tīrthikānāṃ (mu. stegs. rnams. la). See 62*d*.

65 a. CAV in this line lit. darpadṛṣṭiś ca saṃśayaḥ (ṅa. rgyal. lta. ba. the. tshom. rnams).

66 b. CAV omits ete ('di. dag).

b. For janminaḥ (skye. ba. rnams) CV1 janminām and CAV lit. prāṇinaḥ (srog. chags. rnams).

c. For hetukaḥ (rgyu) CV1 mūlataḥ (rtsa. ba. las).

d. For sāvidyā which is for sā avidyā (ma. rig. de. las) CRV sa (=saha) avidya (ma. rig. pa. bcas) ; for iṣyate ('dod) CRV jāyate ('byuṅ).

67 b. For dṛṣṭau (mthoṅ. na) CV1 dṛṣṭe supported by the same Tib. phrase.

d. CAV lit. bhavatyeva na mūlataḥ (rtsa. ba. ñid. nas. med. par. 'gyur), and CRV mūlāt khalv avasīdati (rtsa. nas. ṅes. par. don. par. 'gyur).

68 b. For dṛṣṭa- (mthoṅ. na) CAV jñāne (śes. na) and CV1 dṛṣṭe.

c. After buddhi (blo) CAV adds yi. bar and CRV bdsin which seem to be redundant ; Cf. Hastavālaprakaraṇam Verse I, ed. W. Thomas, JRAS, pp. 267ff. 1918.

69 a. CRV, CAV and CV1 satya- (bden. pa) for sattva-.

c. For bhāvaḥ ('byuṅ) CV1 bhūyaḥ.

70 a. For saṃghātaḥ ('dus. pa) CRV saṃbhūtaḥ (yaṅ. dag. 'byuṅ) and CV1 saṃsṛṣṭhaḥ.

b. CAV in this line if translated into Skt. would be like :

piṇḍaḥ pārthivalakṣaṇaḥ I

(goṅ. bu. sa. yi. raṅ. bdsin. ñid).

CRV in the same way runs :

piṇḍaḥ prākṛtalakṣaṇah

(tha. mal. ba'i. raṅ .bdsin. lus)

piṇḍaḥ in this connection means 'a body' as evident from the use of lus in CRV ; CAV has, however, translated the word (piṇḍaḥ) and not its meaning, employing goṅ. bu in the sense of "a ball". The same mistake occurs also in 60*b* and 61*b* where the words used to mean piṇḍa are ril. po and phur. ma.

The word prākṛta- in CRV is evidently the prakṛti in CV1. It seems that the Tib. translator of CRV misread the latter as former or that the scribe who copied the MS in the possession of CRV's translator, wrote it wrongly.

c. For saṃtāpane (gduṅ. bar. byed. pa), CAV saṃghātane ('dus. pa).

d. For kaṣṭaṃ (sdug. bsṅal) CV[1] kathaṃ and CAV kṛcchraṃ (dka' bar) which supports kaṣṭaṃ and not kathaṃ.

The title and the first lines in CAV are as follow :

mahācāry-Āryadevasya kṛtiś

Cittāvaraṇaviśodhanaṃ nāma viharati sma ll

Bhāratabhāṣāyāṃ l

Cittāvaraṇaviśodhana nāma prakaraṇaṃ ll

rab. tu. byed. pa. ll

Mañjuśrīkumārabhūtāya namaḥ ll

In CRV they run :

Cittaratnaviśodhanaṃ viharati sma ll

Bhāratabhāṣāyāṃ l

Cittaratnaviśodhanaṃ

Bhoṭabhāṣāyāṃ l

sems. rin. po. che. sbyoṅ. bar. byed. par. dses. bya. ba ll

71 a. CRV omits—vyayaṃ ('grib. pa).

b. CRV adds graha (gza') before tithi (tshe) for apekṣya (bltos. nas). CV[1]-apekṣa.—

d. For vyavasthitiḥ (rnam. par. gnas) one must read in the X of CAV bdsag for brtag.

72 a. For api (kyaṅ) CV[1] ākhyaḥ.

b. This line in CV[1] runs :

śabdatrayavikalpanā.

c. For-graha (gza') CV[1] vāra and for rāśi (khyim) CRV kāla (dus.)

d. For sarvalokaiḥ ('jig. rten. kun. gyis) CV1 sarvaloka and CRV only laukikaiḥ ('jig. rten. pa. yis). This case recurs in 43c.

73 a. For-apekṣā CV[1] apekṣaṃ and CRV ādi (ca) (la. sogs).

b. For tathaivaṃ both the texts in Tib. only tathā (de. bdsin). This line in CRV lit. translated may run as follows :

tathaiva kalpanākṛtaṃ I

(de. bdsin. rnam. par. rtog. par. byed).

d. For aśubha (mi. dge) CAV manda (ṅan. pa). Here by graha CRV means 'a planet' (gza') while CAV takes it for 'a hold' ('dzin) the latter being appropriate here ; by uditaḥ CAV means 'told' (bstan. to) and CRV 'arisen' ('byuṅ. ba).

74 a. For āliptaṃ (gtums. pa) CRV nyastaṃ (bkos).

b. For cintāmaṇi (yid. bdsin. nor. bu) CRV mahāratna (rin. po. che).

c. CAV omits pravṛttaḥ and CRV wrongly avṛtaḥ for it. The latter seems to have been misread by the author of CRV as avṛtta but that too is wrongly translated using the word bsgribs meaning āvṛtaḥ.

d. For bṛṃhayet ('phal. bar. byed) CAV janayet (bskyed). Both, Tib. versions omit punaḥ but CAV replaces it by samyak (yaṅ. dag).

75 a. For graha (gza') CV[1] vāra.

c. For viharet (spyod. par. bya) CV[1] viharan.

d. For nirnimittaṃ (mtshan. ma. med) CAV's X 'tshom. med which has no meaning.

76 Cf. PK, p. 38, verse 36 ; Tib. T. Rgyud, Gi, fol. 58*a*3.

b. PK Skt misreads māyā for yāyāt.

c. All Tib. versions read a-(ma) instead of su-.

d. For buddhamayam (saṅs. rgyas. raṅ. bdsin) Tib. of PK samaṃ (mñam. par) for vadet (bya) ; CV[1] vahet while in PK Tib. one should read smra'o for sbyor in the X.

77 For a similar Kārikā See VT, p. 101.

a. For vairocana (rnam. par. snaṅ) CV[1] virocana ; for buddhaiḥ (saṅs. rgyas) CRV nātha (mgon) and CAV śreṣṭhaḥ (gtso).

b. For sūryakaḥ (ñi. ma) CV[1] śūnyakaḥ.

c. For paramāśva (rta. mchog) CV[1] paramādvaya.

The above misreadings in b-c of CV[1] are kept as they are by Dr.

Bhattacarya in his Buddhist Iconography, p. 1, where this verse is quoted by him.

CRV adds nātha (mgon. pa) before paramāśva in c.

78 a. CRV omits rājā (rgyal) but VT has vajrarāṭ (rdo. rje. rgyal. pa) for Herukarāja.

c. For sadā CRV sthitaḥ (gmas), CV1 wrongly yadā and it is altogether omitted in CAV.

The gods mentioned in the last two verses are included in different groups of Dhyāni Buddhas whose number is sometimes five and some times six. They are generally personified and diefied skandhas or āyatanas the latter being taken here.

Some of these Buddhas are individually mentioned in many other works,[1] but one can not definitely say when they formed a group. One finds this group mentioned in a work as old as Guhyasamāja[2] of Ācārya Padmavajra.

These Buddhas are differently named in different works. For instance see VT which is one of the oldest Tantras, and is in complete agreement with the present work as regards the names.

The order of their names also varies as shown below :

I 1 Vairocana, 2 Akṣobhya, 3 Ratnagarbha, 4 Amitābha, 5 Amoghasiddhi. See DS, S.V.

II 1, 3, 4, 5, 2. See SM, p. 568.

However, it is to be investigated whether this difference brings any confusion in the interrelations of these gods and the skandhas or āyatanas.

The following verses from SM. p. 545 will give some idea about the nature of these gods.

a. For siddhanti both the Tibetan texts siddhyate (grub. par. 'gyur) and CV1 siddhāntaḥ ; CRV omits asau ('di).

b. The whole line in CAV can be suggested to be sthiracittaḥ sudhī (janaḥ) (mkhas. pas. sems. ni. brtan. gyur. nas) and in CRV it will run if translated as follows :

sthiracittavidhānataḥ

(brtan. pa'i. sems. kyi. cho. ga. yis).

c. For-vyāpāraḥ (byed. ldan) CV1 vyāhārī and CAV altogether drops it.

b. For ruchita CV1 rucira, cf. SS, p. 63 ; for ceṣṭitaḥ (bya. ba) CRV cittakṛt (sems. kyis. byed).

Here both the Tib. texts read two extra lines which seem to be redundant. They are :

CAV rgod. daṅ. smra. bar. byed. pa. daṅ ।
ji ltar. de. ltar. gaṅ. de. bdsin ॥

CRV rgod. pa'ni. brjod. pa. byed. pa. yam ।
ji. ltar. gaṅ. de. de. bdsin. byed ॥
The Skt pādas suggested from these lines will be :
hasan jalpaṃ sathā kurvan
yad yathā tat tathā tathā ।

81 a. For amaṇḍala- (dkyil. 'khor. du. ni. ma) CV1 āmāṇḍala-.
b. This line in CRV if translated would run :
mahātmyadevayogena (bdag, ñid. che. ba'i. lhar. sbyor. bas).
Verses 79, 80, and 81 are to be read together. The idea contained in them is frequently met with in many Tantric works. For example PK, V, v. 29. Also see Bhagavadgīta, 5-8.

82 a. Here sauritva is to be taken in the sense of śauritva 'bravery' as evident from the Tibetan reading dpa'. po. The reading sauritvaṃ is frequently met with in many Vajrayāna works viz. PK, p. 38, line 28 ; and VT, p. 101. CRV here seems to read sarvasunutvaṃ (sras. rnams. kun. daṅ. bcas. yaṅ), but the meaning is not quite clear.
c. For tattvajñaḥ (de. ñid. śes. ni) CAV 'di. rig evidently for 'di. ñid. rig which in fact gives the same meaning.

83 Cf. BCP, p. 368, and its Tib. in T. mdo, La, fol. 29*b* 3.
a. For yathā both both Skt and Tib. BCP tatra (de. la) ; for prākṛtalokena ('jig. rten. phal. ba. gyis) CV1 and BCP Tib. prākṛtako loko ('jig. rten. phal. ba. ni).
b. For -loko. na (rnal. 'byor. ma) CV1 and BCP Skt. and Tib.- lokena ('jig. rten. gyis), and CRV dhyānena (tiṅ. 'dzin).
b-c. For bādhyate and bādhyante according to the original reading rgyal in CAV one may read jīyate and jīyante respectively.

84 a. CV1 mahāprajñā—mahopayā, mahā.-
b. For mokṣataḥ (mos. pa. nas),the translator of CVA seems to have read in his MS mokṣatā (mos. pa. ñid) which is wrong.

85 a. For asaṃkhyeyair CV1 asaṃkhyāyai.
b. For na (mi) CRV wrongly yat (gaṅ).

c. For jaṅmany atraiva Tib. jaṅmanaitena (tshe. 'di. ñid. kyis). and adds tat (de).

d. For nātra ('de. la. med) CV[1] na ca.

86. a. For māhātmyaṃ (bdag. ñid. che) CV[1] māhātmyāt.

b. For saṃbhṛtaṃ (tshogs) CV[1] saṃbhavaḥ and CRV bhāsitaṃ (gsal. ba).

87. a. For āgama (luṅ) CRV has an amplified reading sugatāgama (bde. gśegs. luṅ) ; for cintā (sems) CAV ukti (gsuṅs. pa) and adds yat after it.

b. For na (mi) CV[1] tu for gṛhyate CAV and CRV yujyate (sbyar. bya. rigs. te respectively).

c. For anuśaya CAV lit. adhyāśaya (lhag. bsam). CRV has rendered it into Tib. very curiously by bag. ñal. The word bag means cuṅ. zad 'a little' 'aṇu' and ñal to 'sleep' 'śaya' from root śī, The Skt. word sugges-ted by this rendering seems to be aṇuśaya which, it seems, either to have been wrongly written by the scribe or read wrongly by the translator himself. Moreover in translating the word the latter seems to have followed its wording and not its sense.

d. For prakāśyate (gsal. bar. bya) CAV prdarśyate (rab. lu. bstan).

On the difference of yānas see AS, p. 14-22 ; Saddharmapuṇḍarīka pp 48, 53 ; DS, II ; the Origin of Mahāyāna Buddhism by Kimura, Cal. ch. IV.

88 a. For anya evādhi- (gdsan. ñid. du ni. mos. pa), CRV anyathādhi (rnam. pa. gdsan. du. mos. pa) and CV[1] anyatra bodhi ; Tib omits ayaṃ.

b. For tathānyā (de. bdsin. gdsan) CV[1] anyathā.

c. For viśuddhi (gtsaṅ) CRV sthiti (gnas).

d. CAV phalaṃ nānyad ihekṣyate ('dir. ni. 'bras. bu. gdsan. mthoṅ. med, and CRV phalaṃ anyad ataḥ śṛtaṃ ('bras. bu. gdsan. du. 'di. las. ñans).

89 a. CAV omits samīpe (ñe. ba. la).

90 a. See SM, p. 73, li 17*a* ; JS. p. 100, 6*a*.

91 a. For -kanti (-'od. zer) CV[1] -kānta ; for samāśliṣṭa- CAV and CRV saṃspṛṣṭha- (kun. reg. pas and phog. pa. na respectively).

b. CRV adds śuddha (dag. pa) as an adjective to sūryakāntamaṇi.

92 c. CRV omits aṃśu ('od). Cf. PS, p. 10, v. 31-32.

93 d. For sarva- (CAV thams. cad and CRV ma. lus) CV1 sa vai ; for prakāśakaḥ (CAV rab. snaṅ. byed, and CRV gsal. bar. byed) CV1 prasādhakaḥ.

Evidently it is a three- line verse, as some of the following verses are quoted in other works just as they are given henceforward.

94 a. Tib. omits ayaṃ.

b. For vartī (sdoṅ. bu) CAV lit. sāra or garbha (sñiṅ. po).

c. Tib only one yathā. CRV once more repeats sva- (raṅ. gi) before sthānaṃ (gnas. su). For gdsan in the X of CAV one should read bdsin.

95 Henceforward I follow the order of the pādas given in the Tib. versions and supported by CV2 . The a-b of this verse are a-b of the verse 97 in CV1.

d. For- mukta (mos. pa) CV1 -mukti.

96 This with the following verse is quoted in SS, p. 38. According to CV1 the order of the pādas is as follows : 96, a-b=97, c-d ; 96, c-d=96, a-b.

a. For vidhijñena (cho. ga. śes. pa) CRV upāyajñena (thobs. śes. pas) and CV1 and CV2 vidhijño hi.

b. For amṛtaṃ CRV ghṛtaṃ (mar). Here it may be noted that amṛtaṃ also means ghṛtaṃ. See Medini quoted in Bhanuji Dikṣita's commentary on Amarakośa II. 7, 28.

c. For hṛdyam (yid. 'oṅ) CV2 ramyaṃ- CAV1 ñams. dga' can mean both.

97 In accordance with CV1 the pādas of this verse are as follows 97, a-b= 96, c-d ; 97, c-d=98, a-b.

a. For mahopāyād (thabs. cheṅ. pos) CV1 mahopāyaṃ, and CV2 mahopāyo.

b. For vidhivat (cho. ga. bdsin. du) CV1 triratna ; for utthitaḥ CV1 and CV2 utthitaṃ and CAV, CRV lit. udbhūtaḥ (skyes and 'byuṅ respectively).

c-d. For sat sukhāsukhavināśanaḥ which is supported by CAV and CRV reading bde. ba. dam. pas. sdug. bsṅal. 'jig and bde. mchog sdug. bsṅal. dsi. bar. byed respectively ; CV[1] sa śubhāśubhavināśakaḥ and CV2 sat sukhāsukhanāśakaḥ. CAV takes the compound to mean satsukhena (bde. dam. pas) asukha (-duḥkha) vināśanaḥ.

98 Cf. a similar verse of Ekallamahācaṇḍaroṣaṇatantra in Cat. Cal. p. 131 Tib. Kanjur, Rgyud, Ca, fol. 36, a 2.

a-b. For -bhūta and -nvitā CV1 -bhutaṃ and -nvitaṃ in spite of latā being a feminine word.

c. For tathā (de. bdsin) CV1 yathā ; Ekalla omits it ; for ekakṣaṇa- Ekalla ekaika (cig. gcig. gis).

d. Cf. As. p, 1 (Tib. T. Rgyud, mi, fol, 108, a 2).

99 This verse is found in CV2.

Cf. SM, p. 434 ; Annals of Bhandarkar. O. R. Institute, pa. 1-11, p. 18.

100 a. CRV reads lag. gdu. ba. lag. par. mthoṅ. la which in Skt. may be translated as haste kiṃ kaṁ kaṇe dṛṣṭe..

b. CRV reads me. loṅ. dag. ni dgos (X dṅos). sam. ci. which in Skt. will run ādarśaiḥ kiṃ prayojanaṃ ; for samikṣyate CRV lit. parīkṣyate (brtags. pa).

Cf. a Marathi proverb. "hātacyā kaṃkaṇās ārasā kasālā. "Why do you require a mirror to see the bangles on your own hands !"

c. CAV omits yataḥ (gaṅ. phyir).

101 c. One may also read bhagnalauhaśalākeva or bhagnāyaḥkhaṇḍa-saṃkāśaṃ (lcags. kyi. reṅ. bu. bdsig. pa. ltar) in CAV. CRV (legs. thur. spaṅ pas. bsdus. pa. bdsin) also seems to agree with the above. Thur- means 'downwards' or 'metallic water', but one may take it for thur. ma meaning śalākā. For the omission of ma cf. mtha'. ma. and mtha' meaning 'end' ; dri. ma, med and dri. med meaning 'unimpure' ; mtshan. ma. and mtshan meaning lakṣaṇa.

Spaṅs lit. means prahāṇam or vināśaḥ, but figuratively it may also be taken to mean bhaṅga or bhagna.

bsdus meaning saṃghāta appears to have been taken for saṃkāśa in CAV.

So CRV now may run bhagnāyaḥkhaṇḍa- saṅghātaṃ.

102 a. For bhūta ('byuṅ. ba) CV1 buddha.

c. For khalu (ṅes. pa) CAV paṃca (lṅa).

d. For antyajaḥ (mtha' skyes) CRV jāti (regs. ni).

104 d. For akāraṇaṃ (rgyu. ma. yin) CRV aniścitaṃ (ṅes. pa. med).

Cf. Avadānaśataka, pp.1 ff ; Vajraśūcyupaniṣad ; Dhammapada, Brāhmaṇavarga.

105-106 Cf. Dākārṇava, p. 138 ; PS. p. 23 ; Guhyasamāja in R. Mitra's Cat. p. 262.

a. CAV omits sarvadā (rtag. tu).

b. For vistṛta (rgyas. gyur. na) CRV nighṛṣṭa (rab. tu. phyi. la)

c. For utpādya (bskyed. nas) CRV saṃsthāpya (bdsag).

108 a. CAV omits kiṃcit (gaṅ. yaṅ) and reads śastā (bstan. pas).

c. CAV reads myoṅ. bdsiṅ. bde. la. sbyor. bar. ldan, which suggests the Skt to be sukhāvedanayogena.

d. For atandritaḥ (gyal. ba. med. pas) CRV prakāśanāt (gsal. ba).

109 The verse is found also in CV2.

a. For -abhyañjana (bsku. mñe) CV2 abhyaṅga.

c. For svādhi- (bdag. ñid. che. ba'i) CV and sveṣṭa- (raṅ. 'dod) ; for -yogena (sbyar. bas) CAV -ātmanā (bdag. ñid. du).

d. As the Tib. does not follow the order of words in Skt. the meaning is changed. CAV and CRV would respectively mean here cittavidhinā pūjayet (bsam. la. cho. gas. mchod. par. bya) and vidhinā pūjāṃ cintayet (cho. gas. mchod. par. bsam. par. bya).

Cf. a similar verse in SM. p. 166 at the end.

110 a. For vādyaṃ (rol. mo) CAV lit. āhatāṃ (brduṅ. ba). Cf. BD, p. 166 ;

b. CAV reads thams. cad. brtul. bdsugs. can. gyis. spyad which suggests in Skt. sarvaṃ saṃyamiko bhajet.

111 c. For sukhād yataḥ (ji. ltar. bde. bas) CV1 sukhaṃ yathā ; for dhyāyet CV1 dhyāyan.

F—

112 a. For bhogais tu CV[1] bhogas tu. Cf. a similar pāda in JS, p. 86; for kāma CAV yogi (rnal. 'byor) and CRV jagat ('gro. ba.).

b. For muktitaḥ CV[1] muktataḥ, CAV kūtrāpi (gaṅ. la 'aṅ) and CRV kenāpi (cis. kyaṅ).

c. CRV omits one negative.

113 This verse is found in CV[2].

a. For -saṃskṛta (sbyaṅs) CRV -adhiṣṭhita (byin. brlabs).

b. CRV adds viśeṣataḥ (lhag. pa. ñid. du).

d. For kaṣṭaṃ (sdug. bsṅal) CV[1] kāryaṃ. Here CAV reads bems. po. without any appropriate sense.

114 a. For prakṛtattvaṃ (tha. mal. pa) CRV lit. prakṛtitattvaṃ (de. ñid. raṅ. bdsin).

c. For -vidhānena (cho. ga. yis), X of CRV vidhijñānena (cho. ga. śes) and CAV yogena (sbyor. ba. yis).

d. For imāṃ samā- CRV sarvāṃ samā- (kun. la. mñam. par. spyod) and CV[1] imāṅgamā- evidently a mistake.

115 c. For vikalpa both the Tib. versions vividha (sna. tshogs).

116 Both the Tib. versions here read in a vividha (sna. tshogs) for vikalpaḥ. The latter is evidently a better reading and supported by the same word (vikalpa) used in c of the preceding kārikā where it is wrongly translated in the Tib. by sna. tshogs meaning vividha.

118 b. CAV omits sthira (brtan);

c-d. Cf. AS, pp. 1-12.

120 b. For sahasā (skad. cig. gis) CRV saha (bcas).

121 c. CAV omits vijnaiḥ (mkhas. pas), and for kriyante (byed) CAV lit. udbhāvayante ('byuṅ. bar. byed).

122 The verse is found in CV[2].

b. For samācaret (yaṅ. dag. spyod).

c. For yasya (gaṅ. gi) CV[2] paśya and CAV paśyāsya ('di. la. ltos).

d. For saukhyabhāvo CV[1] sukṣmadevo, and CRV saukhyadevo'pi (lha'i. bde. ba. yaṅ).

123 This and the following verse occur in PS, p. 13 with slight variations.

a. For tri- (gsum) CRV stri- (bud. med).

c. For vadhyāḥ (bsad. bya) CV1 hy ātmā.

125 Cf. PS. p. 22.

a. For divyaiḥ (lha. yi) CV[1] dravyaiḥ, PS dīrghyaiḥ (chen. po) and CRV bhadraiḥ (bzaṅ. po).

b. For utkarṣa CRV prakāśa (gsal. bar), CAV utsāha (spro. bar), and PS Tib. ānanda (dga'. bar).

c. For māruta (rluṅ) PS marut, for kṣobha (dkrugs. pa) CAV vahni (me) and PS with CV[1] vajriṇam.

d. For vajrakaṃ (rdo. rje. can) PS and CV[1] vajriṇam.

126 a. For aśuciḥ (mī. gtsaṅ) CAV wrongly tshom. med which does not give any sense.

b. For līlayā (brtsen. pas) CRV anāgata (ma. 'oṅs) which gives no appropriate sense.

127 b. For abhibhūyate (zil. gir. gnon. par. 'gyur) CRV figuratively translating mṛtyuḥ kriyate (chi. bar. byed. pa. yin).

c-d. CV[1] runs :

aṇumātrāṃ ghṛṇāṃ lajjāṃ
dūr ataḥ parivarjayet.

Here CAV reading mtshom for 'tshom in c of our X may suggest

nimittaṃ saṃśayaḥ svalpas tasya duḥkhāya jāyate 1 (mtshom. daṅ. the. tshom. chuṅ. ṅus. kyaṅ 1
de. la. sdug. bsṅal. skyed. par. byed 1).

128 In CV[1] this verse is preceded by the following one ; and a-b of the former are put in brackets.

a. For suyuddhaṃ (legs- 'thab. pa) CV[1] hyayuddhaṃ (?) ; for vācaret CV[1] vācaraṃ ; for vijñaḥ CV[1] vijñāḥ.

b. For supalāyanaṃ (legs. par. 'bras. bar. bya) CV[1] svaparāyatanaṃ.

129 a. Mudrā (phyag. sgra) means positions of hands and fingers while performing tantric ceremonies. This word also conveys the four specific modes which lead one to Nirvāṇa. They are :

1 Karmamudrā, 2 Dharmamudrā, 3 Mahāmudrā 4 Samayamudrā.

For details see AS pp. 32-35.

d. CRV at the end adds parīkṣyante (brtag. go.) .

The position of Guru is very high in Vajrayāna. See JS, p. 73; PS, p. 7; Herukatantra in Cat. Cal. p. 67; SS pp 8ff; PK p. 31; Gurupañcāśikā, Journal Asiatique, Oct.-Dec. 1929; etc.

130 d. For sākṣāt (mṅon. sum) CRV sakṛt (lan. cig). Cf. PK, p. 39 verse 34.

131 a. For śuddha (daṅ) CV1 samyak.

b. CAV omits -udaka (chu) and adds -sarva (thams. cad); for śodhakaḥ (yaṅ. dag. sbyaṅ) CV1 śoṣakaḥ.

c. For śraddhāmaṇi (dad. pa'i. nor. bu) CV1 saddharmāṇaḥ; CAV omits proktaḥ (gsuṅs).

.32 a. For śraddhāvān CAV śraddhātmā (dad. pa'i bdag. ñid. can), CRV śraddhayā (dad. pas) and CV1 wrongly śardhāvān; for muhyate (rmoṅs. 'gyur) CRV na muhyate (mi. rmoṅs. te) and CV1 pūjyate.

b. For vivarjitaḥ (bral. 'gyur. na) CRV samāyuktaḥ (yaṅ. dag. ldan). For sa vindati CAV sa.

.33 vetti (de- yis. śes. bya) and CRV savedhanam ('bigs. par. bcas) which seems to be due to a misreading of sa vindati as sa vindhati. CAV's śes. bya suggests that the translator did not understand the root vid which has many meanings besides 'to know'.

34 d. CV1 sukhino janāḥ cannot be construed with astu, and hence sukhito janaḥ. For similar verses Cf. Cat. NDL. pp. 23, 59; JS p. 100; AS, pp. 22, 31, 47, 48, 53.

Colophon. For -nedam atra CV1 nā svātra; for tantramiti CV1 tantreti.

Corrigendum : Due to a wrong arrangement in the mss. the note relating to the title page is misplaced on p. 97 after note 70. It should be read at the beginning of the Notes on p. 82.
